WATER AND WHISKY.

Incidents of the Recent Cold Snap.

We have had a little narrative in our posession for several days, and now, since the rush of the New Years edition is over, we will unfold it to the reader, tructing, at the same time, that no temperance lecturer will purloin it and palm it off as original. During one of the very cold nights last week, a man got drunk in a saloon just south of town, and a sober man took the inebriated individual to his home in East Leavenworth, but while returning lost his way on the ice of the Missouri river, and wandered about for two hours calling for help. Aid finally reached him, but the man who took the drunkard home was frozen so badly that he died three days thereafter."

The same night, when the mercury was thirteen degrees below zero, a Sweedish soldier of the Fifth Infantry, came down from the Fort, put a quart of whisky under his belt, and started back his quarters. The whisky took effect on the way, and the soldier laid down to rest on the snow-covered blue grass of the Arsenal grounds. He fell asleep gently and slept soundly. Just after day light a companion in arms noticed the peaceful slumberer, and thinking he might take cold, aroused him. The whisky-loving Swede, instead of thanking his comrade for the delicate attention, turned over and "cussed" him profanely for destroying his nap just in the cool of the morning.

ANOTHER RASCAL.

His Capture and Imprisonment by the Leavenworth County Authorities.

Day before yesterday a man named John on, who served one term in the Kansas Penitentiary, hired a horse, buggy and trimmings at Short's livery stables, Kansas City. Johnson represented that his name was McGee (a good name in Jackson county Missouri), and had no trouble in obtaining the "rig." At Wyandotte, Johnson sold the buffalo robe, and in Delaware township, this county, tried to sell the buggy and horse to a farmer. Officer Hyde, of that township. suspecting that Johnson didn't have a clea title to the property, arrested him on sur picion, and held him until he received word from Short, of Kansas City, and then turned him over to Sheriff Leonard.
